

Let's Get Acquainted

The Larry Jensen family

Larry Eldon Jensen was born Sept. 30, 1942, in Ogden, Utah. He was the first of two children born to Eldon Wilson and Beverly Wessman Jensen. Larry's father was a farmer in Idaho until he was 35 years old, then he moved his family to Bountiful, Utah where he worked for Standard Oil Refinery until he retired two years ago. Larry's mother was a daughter of John Wessman, once a pharmacist at the old Palace Drug Store when it was by the old Heber bank. In her own rite, Larry's mother is well known for her handiwork, her abilities as a natural musician, and her abilities as a homemaker. Larry recalls those early years at the farm and at school in Mackay, Idaho with the fondness most of us have for our early years.

He was in the fifth grade when the family moved to Bountiful where he completed his secondary education and graduated from Bountiful High School in the spring of 1960.

Shortly after graduation, Larry joined the National Guard. He served six months of active duty and was in the reserves eight years.

Upon completion of his six months with the National Guard, Larry returned to Bountiful where he met Janice Cluff, through a mutual friend. Though they both graduated from the same high school, they had never met.

Janice Cluff was born Aug. 1 wrestling. He has been a wrestling coach in Wasatch County for seven years.

Theirs has been a happy, busy life devoted to raising their children: Tracy was born April 3, 1965, she loves music and was a member of the "Sound Investment," she was an A student and received a scholarship to Weber College and went there until she married Matthew L. Madorin, a student from Iowa, studying at Utah State University. They are now living in the Heber First Ward. Matthew was baptized into the LDS Church about one and one half years ago; theirs was a Salt Lake LDS Temple marriage.

Michael Larry Jensen was born Dec. 21, 1966; he enjoys wrestling and football and other sports. He is a four year letterman. He has taken first in wrestling in the region two of the past three years and was fourth watching her children participate in various activities.

They have been a busy, happy family as Larry has taken summer jobs in construction, truck driving, tutoring children privately, and working part-time at T&K Steel. Janice said there has been many a time when she brought him off the roof of some building at 3 a.m. so he would get some sleep. They have their home up for sale now, as Larry wants to build a smaller home here in the valley.

Janice said it is time to prepare for the missions their children may want to fill, and to help Larry through the additional years at BYU where he has enrolled this year, and hopes to get his Master's degree in Education Administration.

Both Larry and Janice have continued to be active in civic and church activities and plan to continue in this manner.

There certainly are busy times ahead for you, Larry and Janice, and we wish you the very best fortune.

Personal Income: Analysis of 3 Results

In 1983, total personal income in Utah was $14,555 million, an increase of $894 million or 6.5 percent above the 1982 level.

With inflation in 1983 at 3.8 percent, as broadly measured by GNP deflator, the real increase in personal income was approximately 2.7 percent. Total wages and salaries rose 5.1 percent in 1983, reflecting a 1.0 percent net gain in employment and a 4.1 percent average wage increase.

The most rapid source of some growth in Utah in 1983 occurred in the construction industry (9.6%) and in the finance, insurance and real estate sector (19.1%). Analysis of personal income clearly illustrates the weakness track unlikely to be interrupted any time soon. Despite the abrupt third-quarter slowing in Real GNP (2.7 percent annual rate from 7.1 percent in the previous period), renewed recessionary fears seem premature.

In actuality, the slower but possibly sustainable growth trend seems to reflect the intent of monetary policies over the past six months. The fourth-quarter outlook is for real economic growth in the 2½-3 percent range--certainly a respectable performance--to initiate the third year of economic expansion.

Consumer spending--flat overall in the third quarter--should rebound in the fourth-quarter holiday season. Initial evidence is already in--real consumer spending jumped 1.4 percent in September, partially offsetting the weak sales performance in July and August.

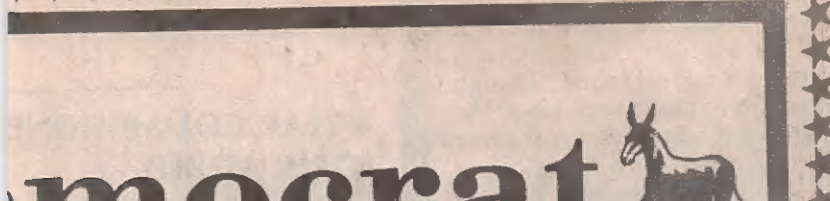

Despite some continued disruption in the automobile pipeline to showroom floors, economic fundamentals seem comfortably in place to sustain consumer spending growth. Personal income jumped 0.9 percent in September, while hourly wage rates accelerated 0.7 percent. The nation's jobless rate slipped to 7.4 percent in September, reflecting continued impressive employment growth.

up 11 percent in the third quarter, while exports were up only 1 percent; as a result, more than half of the U. S. expansion went overseas.

The interest-rate decline during September and October achieved significant proportions. In the short end of the market, the Fed Funds rate has dropped two percentage points--from 11.8 percent to 9.8 percent. In June long-term Treasury bond yields reached 13.5 percent, but are currently quoted at 11.70 percent. Interestingly, the recent interest-rate decline in many cases essentially offsets the jump in interest rates which occurred in the second quarter.

In the fourth quarter, some additional modest interest-rate easing may occur, but in 1985 the basic trend in rates is likely to be upward. The good news is that from the currently reduced levels, the anticipated rise of 1-2 percentage points will be painful but not debilitating. The extent of the 1985 interest-rate rise is critically important, but nevertheless uncertain. Our estimate is based upon moderate growth in private-sector demand for funds, upon a fiscal 1985 federal budget deficit remaining near $200 billion, and a Federal Reserve monetary policy containing inflation below 6 percent.

ANDREW AND EDA REGINA JOHNSON

Andrew Johnson was born March 15, 1859, in Ockersjon, Sweden. His parents were John Johnson and Elizabeth Pearson. They were converted to the LDS Church and came to America in 1872. They came to Utah, and settled in Heber.

Andrew married Eda Regina Johnson, also a convert from Sweden. She was born in Ulricehamn, Sweden, on September 7, 1861. Her parents were Gustaf and Louise (Jacobson) Johnson. She was seven months old when she came with her parents and sister Sophia, who was 13 years old, to Utah.

Eda's school days were spent in the log house where the First-Sixth Ward Chapel is now. She attended dancing classes in the old Second Ward hall, where Anderson's Store is today. Their school dances were held in the bowery. She was fond of dramatics and because she was a natural mimic, she took part in many plays and gave numerous "recitations."

Eda and Andrew were married on September 26, 1878, in the Endowment House in Salt Lake. They had seven children: Louise (married Louis Coleman), Charles (married Elizabeth Blackley), Ralph (married Luella Cummings), Gustaf (married Angie Young), Porter (married Zenith Spurrier), Arnold (married Nellie Davis, who died, married Delores McDonald), and Dewey (married LaVina Campbell).

HEBER BIOGRAPHIES

When Andrew was a young man he fell from a horse and injured his leg, which crippled him the remainder of his life. But his handicap did not prevent him from becoming an expert carpenter and cabinet maker, and under his supervision many of the prominent buildings of the city were erected, such as the Stake Tabernacle and Amusement Hall, First Ward Church, Seminary, Heber Mercantile and many homes in the valley. For many years he and his son Ralph ran the lumber mill for Mark Jeffs.

He filled three missions for the Church. His first was 1890-92, to the Northern States; the second to Sweden, 1903-05; the third when he was 64 years old and was a short-term mission to the Northern States, October 1925 to April 1926. As all of these missions occurred after he was married, it was necessary for his wife to sacrifice much, remaining home to provide for the family of small children.

Eda was always active in the Church from the time she was 10 years old. She possessed a fine alto voice and always sang in ward and stake choirs, and was chorister in Primary, Relief Society and the Daughters of the Pioneers. She was connected with the Relief Society from the time it was first organized in the East Ward. When her husband was on his first mission the meetings were held in her home, at which time she was assistant secretary. On January 2, 1895, she was called to act as one of the board of directors for a year in the East Ward Relief Society. On March 16, 1883, she was set apart by William Forman as first counselor to Ellen Lee in the Primary Association, and served in that capacity until December, 1893. She was a block teacher until a few years before her death, on May 25, 1944, at the age of 83.

For many years Andrew Johnson was a counselor in the Stake YMMIA, serving with John E. Moulton. He was a Sunday School teacher until ill health forced his retirement, and was very active in the High Priests' Quorum. He was always a devout and faithful member of the Church and although his brothers and sisters apostatized from the Church, he remained steadfast in his beliefs. He died April 7, 1940, at the age of 81.
